Lodge Changes Article X; Treaty Near Acceptance

REPUBLICAN LEADER PRESENTS SUBSTITUTE TO CLOSE FIGHT OVER MUCH MOOTED WORDING

Vote on Ratification Late Today is Hope of G. O. P.; Revision Follows Lines of Previous Draft.

LODGE COMPROMISE MAY END MONTHS OF STRUGGLE ON TREATY.

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, March 12.—A substitute for the republican article X reservation to the peace treaty was introduced in the senate today by the republican leader, Senator Lodge, Massachusetts. In general it follows the form of the draft agreed on several days ago in bi-partisan compromise negotiations.

When the reservation was offered it was declared among the republicans that the negotiations had lined up almost enough votes to ratify the treaty on that basis but that final agreement had not yet been reached. The republican leaders planned to obtain a vote late today.

In presenting the substitute, Senator Lodge said he did so in the interest of compromise and not because the new draft represented any substantial change in the meaning of the reservation.

Change in phraseology, in full consonance with what I have stated on the floor of the senate several times. I do not feel that I should be justified in introducing a reservation of a mere question of the phraseology of any reservation.

"If I thought the modification made any change in the substance of the reservation, I not only should not offer it, but I should vote against the treaty with it included."

Revised Reservation Quoted
As presented the reservation reads as follows:

"The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country by the employment of military or naval forces, or resources of any form of economic discrimination, or by force in contravention of the league or not under the provisions of Article X, or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any form of the treaty for any purpose unless in any particular case the congress, which has the sole power to constitute the army and navy, shall have authorized the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall, by exercise of full legislative power, act or just cause so provide."

Backing Not Solid
It was apparent that the republican leaders had failed to unite their colleagues behind the new reservation. Senator Freelinghusen, who voted for ratification last week, had told the senate that modification had no ratifying effect. He offered a substitute.

The irreconcilable opponents of ratification also indicated they would vote to substitute the new draft for the old one but the leaders insisted they would hold the line among votes. Compromise advocates among democrats predicted that about the same number on their side would vote for the substitute. It takes 64 to ratify.

City's Right to Arm Itself Is Before Court

(By Associated Press.)
Tombstone, Ariz., March 12.—Can a community believing itself menaced by dangers with which the ordinary machinery of the law is unable to cope, arm itself with the law into its own hands and expel the menacing elements?

This question was scheduled today for both sides in the trial of Harry E. Wootton, Blaine, hardware dealer, charged with kidnapping in connection with the copper strike of 1916 striking copper miners and their sympathizers from Bisbee, Ariz., to Columbus, N. M., July 12, 1917.

State Insurance Staff Undergoes Changes

Madison, March 12.—Insurance Commissioner Platt Whitman today announced the appointment of George A. Olson, chief fire examiner in the department, as deputy insurance commissioner to succeed F. W. Kuwabara. Simultaneously, Mr. Whitman announced the appointment of H. G. Brunquell, present assistant actuary, as chief actuary. Mr. Brunquell takes the place of J. A. Anderson, who leaves the department to become actuary for the Central Life.

Germans Put More Clinches On Extradition

(By Associated Press.)
Berlin, March 12.—The German charge d'affaires in London has handed to Premier Lloyd George a note regarding the entente extradition list, it was announced today.

After asserting that the imperial court would decide only by considerations of justice and will conduct an impartial inquiry, the note demands that the arrest of George be made in the entente territories on charges similar to those enumerated in the extradition list shall cease and that those arrested shall be delivered to German courts.

The release of Germans who for similar reasons have been detained in prison camps also is looked for. The note finally demands that the allies abandon the reservation regarding their right to try for crimes committed during the war any Germans not mentioned in the list; if encountered on allied territory.

Otherwise, the note says, restoration of normal relations between the different nationalities is hardly conceivable.

WOMEN OF CITY MAY VOTE APRIL 6

If Suffrage Amendment Passes Next Week They Will Enter Local Campaign.

Candidates for the different city offices are worrying today over the possibility of women voting in the city election on all the offices. Two states more are necessary to ratify the suffrage amendment to the constitution and when that is done the secretary of state will certify to it and the amendment is at once in force.

That will make every woman of 21 who is a citizen of the United States eligible to vote at the first election. That is April 6. They will be able to vote for the city and town officers, the candidates for delegates to the national convention and at the referendum elections to amend the state constitution.

Aldermen Don't Like It

In Janesville the prospect of the women voting has been generally pleasing to the aldermanic candidates. One who was asked about it said to please not say a word.

The women have been interested in the city affairs of late, especially in matters relating to the betterment of the city and the city planning commission. Under the law too, the women are eligible as candidates and may have a candidate of their own for an aldermanic seat.

Women Are Glad To Vote

Miss Gertrude Cobb, president of the Janesville Federation of Women said:

"I think a large percentage of the women of the city would turn out and vote this spring if they were given the chance. The only chance we ever had to vote on any matter was at the school election. In fact on all school questions, the only issues we are allowed to vote on, women have always made a good showing."

Suffrage Leader Says "Yes."

Miss Mattie L. Alden, who was vice president of the women's suffrage organization, said today before the war when interviewed today said that she thought the women of the city would take the opportunity to vote if the right was granted them. She also expressed a hope that the suffrage organization would in the near future reorganize for active work and the fact that it has hindered recent progress.

NEWBERRY WITNESS IS ORDERED TO BED

(By Associated Press.)
Grand Rapids, Mich., March 12.—Paul King, Newberry campaign manager, made a vain attempt to resume testimony in the Newberry bribery case today. The witness was ordered to bed after testifying for a few minutes.

Save Money on Meat Week To Be Observed Soon

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, March 12.—The week of March 22 was set by the department of agriculture as the first "save money on meat" week. Fair price commissioners in many states have been holding conferences with retail meat dealers as a result of which the cheaper cuts of meat will be stocked to meet the expected demand.

DRIVE FOR 1,000 MEMBERS CLOSES TOMORROW NIGHT

OFFICIALS DECIDED TO EXTEND C. OF C. DRIVE ONE DAY.

831 ARE SIGNED

Thirty-One Names Added to List Today—Earl J. Smith Takes Weigle's Place.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Goal	1,000
At start	664
Previously reported	136
Reported today	31
Total to date	831

Thirty-one new members of the Chamber of Commerce were reported to the noon luncheon at the Grand hotel today, bringing the campaign total up to 831.

Confident that in less than the 900 mark can be reached, it was decided today to continue soliciting until tomorrow night when the drive will be brought to an official close. There will be no noon luncheon tomorrow, it was stated at the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon.

Weighted in to the American City Bureau, arrived in the city today from Chicago to take charge of the campaign, suggesting that Earl J. Smith, of the American City Bureau, to conduct a campaign today. Before leaving Mr. Weigle issued a statement in which he predicted a golden future for Janesville if its citizens would unite under the Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Commerce will rally to support the program of the chamber in order that the town may grow comparatively with the rest of the world.

Mr. Smith, who is a resident of Chicago, declared Janesville had an opportunity unequalled by many cities, he has visited within the past year.

Can Be Second Detroit

"I have seen cities at which prosperity knocked incessantly but because of their unwillingness to realize that there are certain community conditions which must be provided in industrial expansion, probable growth of Janesville and the industrial Janesville today can become the Pontiac, Flint or Detroit of Michigan. It all depends on the vision of the city leaders."

Smith Known Here

Mr. Smith greeted many old friends upon his arrival here today. He is well known here having conducted the installation service, immediately succeeding the organization campaign of the Chamber of Commerce two years ago. His work here will consist of offering suggestions to the members of a new program of work and checking up work of committees.

Team workers who reported for action today signed up with a complete list of the 800 signed up to last night. Territory was thrown open and solicitors were instructed to go to members of those whose names were not listed.

Many of the campaigners are comparative newcomers to Janesville, all of whom have been in the city for a short time. The members of the Chamber of Commerce and commercial organization work.

MEREDITH KNOCKS CHRONIC KNOCKER IN FIRST ADDRESS

(By Associated Press.)
New York, March 12.—In terms of the advertising manager, Secretary of Agriculture Meredith today told the members of the Merchants' association of New York today of his ambition to increase the output of the department's chief product, service. It was the first address made by Mr. Meredith since his appointment.

"Are you going to keep this wonderful product of service from this people—this wonderful product you are manufacturing?" he asked his audience which he characterized as the owner of a business concern up on which he was making a report.

Deplores Knocking Habit.
After paying tribute to the loyalty displayed by the employees in the department he deplored a tendency to discuss "waste," "graft" and "soft snaps."

"I think it is wrong. I think it is a waste of time to be talking all the time about the waste and about the graft and soft snaps and all the habits of the department. There may be some standing around who believe you mean it; there may be some foreigners who are not acquainted with our ways over here and they may repeat your statements to others. How many of us simply fall in with the habit of complaining and criticizing? It is poor advertising. Don't do it."

Money Used in Sub-Divisions

Secretary Meredith explained that only about one-third of the regular appropriation of $33,000,000 is actually used in the interest of agriculture. The balance goes to the maintenance of weather service, forest service, the administration of the food and drugs act, and other sub-divisions of the department.

125 COAL MINERS AND OPERATORS ARE INDICTED

SPECIAL GRAND JURY IN- VESTIGATING INDUS- TRY MAKES CHARGES.

TEN ACTS CITED

Many of the Violations Said to Have Occurred Previous to Armistice.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 12.—An indictment charging conspiracy in violation of the Laver food and fuel control act and the federal criminal code, naming 125 coal operators and miners as defendants, was returned in federal court late today by a special grand jury which has been investigating the coal industry since Dec. 17, 1919. More than half of the defendants are operators, it is said. The defendants will be arraigned on May 4.

Ten overacts are charged in the indictment, which contains 18 counts. It is understood that many of the violations charged have no connection with the strike of bituminous miners, but occurred prior to the armistice.

The indictment was brought under charges in general that miners and operators conspired to enhance the price of necessities by restricting distribution, limiting manufacture and by other means and by conspiring to commit offenses against the United States as defined in the criminal code.

The penalty on conviction is a fine not exceeding $10,000, imprisonment for not more than two years, or both fine and imprisonment.

Active in Central Field

While no names were made public, it was learned that practically all those making their statements in the central competitive field, which embraces Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

The investigation was in charge of Daniel S. Sims, Lafayette, Ind., special assistant United States attorney general appointed to enforce the injunction order of the court against the United Mine Workers of America at the time of the coal strike.

It was said the grand jury examined more than 350 persons. Included among them were Dr. H. A. Garfield, former federal fuel administrator; Cyrus Garney, assistant to the general manager of coal operators and mine union officials.

STATE INCOME TAX TIME LIMIT EXTENDED

An extension in time for making state income tax returns was granted today by Assessor F. A. Taylor. People will be allowed until March 15 to make their statements. A shortage of blanks has held up the work. Within a few days the Gazette hopes to have a supply of blanks which can be obtained by calling on the office.

Monday is the last day for making federal income tax returns, F. J. Moutat, federal income tax assessor today said. There will be no further extension. F. J. Taylor, corporation expert and Mr. Moutat are at the post office to assist all in making statements.

Small Increases Shown In New Census Figures

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, March 12.—Population statistics for 1920 announced today by the census bureau included: Macon, Ga., 62,625, an increase of 11,867; Chattanooga, Tenn., 57,395, an increase of 15,291; Coatesville, Pa., 14,515, an increase of 3,431.

ASSAULTED ONCE EVERY MONTH FOR 9 YEARS—CHARGE

Charging that he assaulted her on an average of once a month for a period of the nine years of their marriage, Mrs. Armeta Smith, Beloit, seeks absolute divorce, custody of her three children and special damages of $10,000 in the circuit court here.

The cruelty charges contain one count in which the woman is charged with having, two days before the birth of her eldest child, her husband dragged her from her bed to the floor in the presence of a third person.

She further charged that on other times he knocked her down, pulled her hair, and otherwise treated her brutally and abusively. She stated, she was convicted in the municipal court on her charges of assault and battery, to which she pleaded guilty. Furthermore, she declares, because he failed to properly support her, she was compelled to work in a factory to keep herself and her children, eight, six, and four years old, respectively. Pending trial of the case, the woman has been granted the custody of the children.

Princess Nauredin Viora, formerly Mrs. Gould, in winter costume.

Princess Nauredin Viora of Albania, better known to Americans as the former wife of Frank Gould, is one of the well known visitors at the great winter resort of St. Moritz, Switzerland. Her costumes are among the most stunning and stylish ones shown there. She is wearing one of her sport costumes in the picture, just received from Switzerland.

DANIELS FEARFUL OF BRITISH NAVY

Jellicoe's Proposal for Colonies Building Ships Is Studied.

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, March 12.—The navy department of the United States looks askance at the plans of Great Britain to stimulate the building of a navy in each of her colonial possessions, including Canada, Australia, and New Zealand believing that thus the combined naval strength of the British empire will be greater than it has been before and will virtually nullify the public statements of Sir Auckland Geddes, the new British naval commander in chief, that the British empire will be reduced to a mere collection of islands.

The discussion here is occasioned by the completion of a report by Admiral Jellicoe after a trip around the world in which he has advised the British empire to build a navy for defense. Particularly did this arouse comment here in connection with the Canadian naval defense for the two neighboring countries needed any naval vessels on the Great Lakes and from this fact it has been usually supposed that special naval defense for Canada would never be attempted.

On the other hand, it cannot be said that the question has been thoroughly canvassed and it is early to reflect Washington opinion. Thus far the project of enlarging the entire British navy through separate colonial navies is coming in for a good deal of adverse comment and Canada is not singled out especially.

Indeed, coming upon the heels of the controversy over the right of the British colonies to vote as six units in the league of nations, the project is not popular.

Botanists Can Breed Disease Proof Plants

(By Associated Press.)
Cambridge, Eng., March 12.—Cambridge university botanists claim that it is now possible to breed disease-proof plants. A special body of investigators who have been devoted themselves to the practical testing of the Mendelian heredity law are engaged in immunizing wheat against barley rust and the results of which will be shown in the summer to a distinguished assembly of medical men.

Never have plant doctors, as they are called, have already succeeded in breeding a new wheat known as "woman," which has yielded 12 quarters (48 bushels) to the acre—three times an ordinary crop.

INCESSANT RAINS FILL EVERY STREAM IN MOUNTAINS UP TO BRIM; 11 FATALITIES ARE KNOWN

Anxiety Felt by Residents of Missouri Towns Where Storm Struck; Whole Family Disappears During Winds.

RIVERS RAGE AS ICE BREAKS UP

Lowlands Near Racine Are Flooded, Eastern Streams on Rampage.

(By Associated Press.)
Racine, March 12.—Owing to the annual spring thaw, Root river has been on a rampage the past 24 hours. A vast quantity of ice has been carried down stream together with boats, chicken coops, and other small buildings.

Because of an ice jam extending from the C. and N. W. railway bridge at Cedar Bend, the water has backed up causing a flood in the lowlands to a depth of several feet. Homes in the vicinity have thus far escaped serious damage.

Owing to the shallow water at this point it is impossible to send tug upstream to break the jam. The department of public works has a large crew of men at work along the river front in an attempt to relieve the situation.

ICE BREAKS LOOSE, TEARS OUT BRIDGE

Pittsburgh, March 12.—An ice gorge 20 feet high and stretching eight miles up river, broke loose at Freeport last night, started with a rush down the Allegheny, ran into the county bridge moving it ten inches out of line, tore a number of flat boats, barges and houseboats from their moorings, and washed them down the river, into the Ohio, pounding most of them into splinters on the way.

SYRIAN PRINCE PROCLAIMED KING

Fireworks at Beirut Celebrate Independence of Country.

London, March 12.—Prince Faisal, son of the king of the Hedjaz, has been proclaimed king of Syria, according to advices received here today. A dispatch to the London Times from the Egyptian capital says:

Proclaim Independence

Beirut, Syria, March 12.—The Syrian congress at Damascus on Monday declared Syria to be an independent state. There were fireworks Monday night, and Beirut celebrated its independence.

Palatine, La. Canon and northern Mesopotamia are included in the districts where the Arabs are voting freely, apparently with the purpose of forcing upon peace conference a declaration of Syria, under a threat of co-operation with the Turkish nationalists if independence is refused them.

The Arabs claim to have 100,000 troops ready to co-operate with the Turks in Cilicia and Anatolia. Apparently they are willing to accept French advisers.

Americans Eat Less Beef Because of Cost

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, March 12.—High retail prices in 1919 of beef in America almost eight pounds and caused the consumer to turn more frequently to veal and mutton, according to a statement today by the department of agriculture. Slightly less pork was eaten, but the total consumption of pork products was projected for 1919 and the exports of pork and lard were greater than ever shown in the records of the department. The total meat consumption was less than in 1918, the per capita for 1918 being 160.05, and that in 1919, 141.98.

Farmers Institute Milk Strike Against Creamery

Neenah, March 12.—Thirty farmers living in this vicinity have instituted a milk strike against local creameries because of inability to agree on prices. The creameries were served on the creameries unless they agreed to pay $3.25 per hundred for milk and allow the farmers the option of selling milk at 4 percent test for $3.60 per hundred with an additional 9 cents for each point above that test, no milk would be sold to the creameries. The farmers refused, claiming that the local public is now paying enough for milk, and that any increase in cost would result in an increase in the ultimate consumer.

TOURIST SPOT OF MISSOURI IS THREAT- ENED.

Branson, Mo., March 12.—High water loomed today as a further menace to life and property in Taney county, where a tornado late yesterday took at least one life, brought injury to numerous persons and caused property damage the extent of which cannot be estimated until complete reports are received from the localities visited by the storm.

Incessant rains which preceded and followed the tornado have given every stream in the Ozarks bank full, and if the precipitation should continue, it was declared today, the danger from floods will become serious.

Fear Felt for Powerite

Special anxiety was felt today by residents of Powerite on the White river where a large hydro electrical plant which furnishes current for many south Missouri towns is located. A dam 80 feet high and 600 feet long stretches across the river at this point, is reported to be rising rapidly but reports today that the dam was holding back the flood waters.

No reports of further fatalities have been received today. The storm seems to have been the one which struck at Nevada, Mo., early yesterday afternoon where three persons were killed and the wreckage of $100,000 caused. Then lifting, it bounded toward the Ozark region, striking Taney county and Turkey Creek valley with full force.

Ten Dead at Melva

At Melva, five miles south of here, the known death toll was heaviest. Ten persons lost their lives there. The victims included the seven children of "Ran" and William Box. The wives of both men also were killed. The town of Melva is located on the banks of the Taney river. Manky, his brother, looked on, powerless to aid him because of exhaustion due to having been blown in a great gust of wind. The storm killed Jackson was killed near here.

Whole Family Disappears

Rescuers today were searching for Mr. and Mrs. John W. Jones, who lived on a farm near Onias. The man, his wife and their house disappeared during the storm and no trace of them has been found, according to reports received here.

The district over which the tornado swept is extremely picturesque and today the towns of the Ozarks from all parts of the country.

The Last Word

March 13, 1920.

SHIP HEARING CONTINUED.

Washington.—Hearing on the application of the shipping board for dissolution of the temporary injunction against the sale of 25 foreign-owned ships was continued today by Justice Bailey today in the District of Columbia supreme court.

GEDDES GIVES ADDRESS.

London.—Sir Auckland Geddes, the newly appointed commander in chief of the British navy, made his first speech today since his appointment was announced, addressing a large gathering in his honor at the mercantile club. The American ambassador, John W. Davis, presided.

DENY USE OF PLANES.

Washington.—A second request by the state department that the American oil companies in the Tampico district be permitted to use their planes between Tampico and their plants to transport money for their payrolls has been refused by the Mexican government. The Mexican government is studying a plan to establish this service with government owned and operated planes.

OFFICERS TO BE DEMOTED.

Washington.—Return of more than 300 officers of the regular army on duty in Washington to their pre-war rank is provided in orders being issued by direction of General March, chief of staff.

REDS OUT ENEMY.

London.—Bolshevik troops have cleared the hostile forces from the district of the Red Sea in Circassia, on the Sea of Azov, it is announced in a soviet official communiqué received today from Moscow. Large numbers of the American occupiers by the reds.

BODIES TO BE RETURNED.

Washington.—The bodies of about 50,000 of the American dead in France will be returned to the United States, while between 20,000 and 25,000 will remain in the American cemetery. Secretary Baker today informed Chairman Wadsworth.

FORWARD, JANESVILLE!

To make Janesville a better place in which to live and in which to do business, the Gazette pledges itself to work for and support these things:

Housing survey to discourage exorbitant rentals; encouragement of building more houses; appraisal of property values so that rent profiteers may be made to pay the increased amount of taxes.

Open roads in the country 365 days of the year; better roads generally, and support of the road building plans; better streets and more paved streets in the city.

A market pavilion in the city which may also be used for many other purposes by farmers and livestock producers.

A community building to be used for auditorium, sport events, meetings, rest rooms, and also as a fitting memorial for soldiers.

Open the churches seven days a week and stop economic waste in room and time. Make basements meeting places for the young, and provide gymnasium facilities.

Build a real home for the girls who come here to work.

Open the fair grounds this year as a recreation park with tennis courts and other play apparatus. Establish parks and playgrounds.

Better the street car service as population increases.

STUCK ON A SANDBAR?

For four days the new Janesville hotel project has been stuck on a sandbar, hanging on a snag or impeded by some immovable object. There is needed $15,000 only to secure the $400,000 for the hotel.

In Janesville are a dozen men who could subscribe that amount without worrying. The last subscriptions which have brought the total so near the necessary, and have been by the younger and active business men who have vision, hope, and are anxious that Janesville shall grow and prosper and progress.

As the president of the Samsen Tractor Co., said at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce last Monday, the time to get into the band wagon is now. Those who do not want to ride on this trip will find the seats taken when another is proposed.

Janesville will build the hotel. That is a sure thing, and the $15,000 will be raised. It may take a week or more to do it, but the public will know who it was that finally came up and evidenced faith in Janesville and its future. The $100 subscribed by some man who has to make a sacrifice for the investment, is greater than several thousand from the man who has made his fortune here and is contented and to whom it matters little whether we have a hotel or not, or whether we grow or stand still. The most dangerous man to a community is the one who is comfortably satisfied.

THE SENATE AND MR. COLBY.

While it is possible for the United States senate to refuse to confirm the appointment of Bainbridge Colby as secretary of state on grounds which may be satisfactory to that body, yet, unless there are grave moral reasons, or reasons based on knowledge of affairs in which Mr. Colby has been involved entirely outside of politics, it would seem to be the duty of the senate to confirm him. Mr. Colby evidently suited both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson. He has been selected from a great number of highly qualified men for this place. He apparently comes up to Mr. Wilson's ideal of a secretary of state, one whose mind would easily run along with his. Therefore, it is only a game of delay and politics if the secretary is not confirmed. He is Mr. Wilson's secretary. The president has to get on with him and if he likes the kind of statesman Mr. Colby is, he should be allowed to have him.

A PLATFORM OF THE OPPORTUNIST.

The La Follette platform on which the delegates pledged to take the word of the senator from Wisconsin as their boss and dictator of conscience, is that of the opportunist. Its appeal is to the dissatisfied, the man who was the pacifist in war, who hid behind the cloak of the "conscientious objector," who touched the ragged edge of disloyalty and came close under the espionage and sedition acts, commonly known as the pro-German, and to the few members of the Non-Partisan league in Wisconsin and all that organization of socialistic politics represents.

To call it Republican is a misnomer. It would not be surprising if the platform came as a declaration of principles of a branch of the socialist party. There is where it belongs. It declares for government ownership of the railroads and a number of other so-called reforms and changes designed to catch votes, and advocated by socialists. And the candidate for the presidency must be one who subscribes to these things. So far there is no one in the field who could qualify on this basis. "The nearest man to the La Follette idea is probably Hiram Johnson, but the California senator is still far from the main track of the platform, issued Thursday by the La Follette management. About the only person pickable is Senator Bob La Follette, though Victor Berger could qualify fully and to the letter.

SOLDIER BONUS BILLS.

There was every promise of an early passage of some law providing for a proper recognition of the soldier who served in the great war. But whatever hopes we had have evidently been shattered by the statement of Secretary of the Treasury Houston, that he utterly opposed any bill for a bonus at this time as it would be "a menace to the credit of the nation." In the first place the nation has no credit and asks none other than that granted by our own people. We raised all the money for the war and all the funds for the enormous waste in all departments of the government of Mr. Wilson, right here at home. The soldier is entitled to a bonus. He should be given one consistent with the sacrifices he made. Mr. Baker buys $600,000 of new auto trucks in the last month, with a billion dollars worth of them rusting to dissolution. The offices of the government swarm with employees whose principal business is to dust the dirt from the top of the desk. They are on the payroll to the extent of several millions. On every hand there is waste and extravagance. The mad riot of money spending started during the war under the cloak of necessity, has only been slightly curtailed. But according to Mr. Houston, just as the soldier who came to the nation's rescue is about to receive some recognition and justice, no more money must be appropriated. Mind you, though, this does not stop the waste or extravagance that goes on because that money has already been appropriated.

A hero yesterday, forgotten today—the soldier. That is the tone of the government. Mr. Mondell, leader of the republican majority on the floor of the House, should take warning now, that the soldier will not for-

THE TIES.

To these few things I must be true:
The God who guards us all below,
The laughter of my children small,
The friends who daily come and go,
The loved ones passed beyond recall;
The heritage my father gave,
The name I wear and am to leave.
Within this circle, all I crave
From earthly life I must receive,
And find the strength for all I do.

These few restrictions shut me in:
I must not falsely deal for gain,
Nor rob my children of their play,
Faithful to them I must remain,
And teach them well, let come what may;
And though I toil for wealth and fame
And strive for goals that lie afar,
Whatever joys are mine to claim,
I'm bound to know that first they are
Unmarred by selfishness or sin.

To these few dreams I must be true:
The laughter of my children small,
Their welfare and their future years;
I must remember, first of all,
Never to cause them needless tears,
Never to shame the name they wear.
Or bring to them one hour of woe;
I hold their trust, nor do I dare
Beyond its boundaries to go,
And more than this I dare not do.

get either Mr. Houston or the other men responsible for the failure to do a duty by the men who won the war for America.

Who was the able member of the county board that said, "Let Nature take its course." Well, he was right, Nature is doing just that, and a part of her job is to keep the roads impassable when they are much needed. That's the way they used to be back in '56, and it ought to be good enough for us now. Such is the complaisant philosophy of the eminent supervisor. When the present terms of the members expire the voters should fill the vacancies which the law will make a fact.

One of the biggest criminal cities in the country is Kansas City with a large colored population and many petty crimes punishable by jail sentences. That is, "was," for a change has come over the county of Jackson in which Kansas City is located. The jail was ordered closed by Judge Latsch. "Prohibition has dried up crime," said the judge. That is another reason why Mr. Edwards and the owners of refrigerator lines will not be able to defeat the will of the people.

Most Americans will agree with the French newspapers: Why worry about Germany? France was the attacked and is the one whose sufferings during the war were our concern. So much the more reason why we should be most deeply interested in the recovery of the country from the effects of war. "La Fayette we are here," should not be forgotten.

Of the renters in Oshkosh, 34 percent pay $10 a month or less, and 59 percent pay $25 a month or less—that includes the $10 places, too. But who wants to live in Oshkosh? It's too far away to commute to Janesville.

In order that it shall be perfectly fair, we propose a talking speed contest between Admiral Sims and Secy. the Honorable Josephus Daniels. Swear words barred, no gas masks allowed.

Those Milwaukee liquor dealers who have been pleading guilty to the violation of the law are undoubtedly in favor of Gov. Edwards for president on a platform of personal liberty and lots of it.

Are we to have a city election without a contest to stir the blood up a trifle? Or is everybody happy with the aldermanic record?

Evidently our county board is convinced, that the airplane is coming into universal use and roads will not be needed.

Just now the auto has the politician beat as a mud-slinger.

Backward Glimpses

FORTY YEARS AGO

March 12, 1880.—The home of James Riordan was completely demolished by fire last night. It is out of the city limits, being in Black Hawk, and the fire department could not arrive in time to save it. The blaze broke out three or four times early in the evening but was put out by Mr. Riordan. There is about $300 insurance on it.—M. C. Smith was elected president of the new Janesville, Beloit and Rockford R. R. last night.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

March 12, 1890.—Bert Nelson, 206 Jackson street, had his arm broken this afternoon by getting it caught in the shafting at the Gazette office. He was working in the press room.—Michael Barrch, Chicago, formerly of this city, was here today in search for his brother, who suddenly disappeared some days ago.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

March 12, 1900.—Mrs. H. D. McKelney, who has been a resident of this city since 1869, died at her home last night after a short illness of pneumonia. The funeral will be held tomorrow at the home.—Three boys, all claiming to be 17 and residents of this city, were arrested yesterday on charges of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

TEN YEARS AGO

March 12, 1910.—George S. Parker was re-elected president of the Commercial club for the coming year at their meeting last night. The other officers were re-elected. They are George Kimball, vice president; H. H. Blum, secretary, and P. J. Mount, treasurer.—There was an informal meeting of the council last night.

Hurst and His Berry

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Miami, Fla., March 12.—A few miles from this town is a factory which is said to be the only one of its kind in the world. It makes a high grade of starch out of a common weed which grows all over the country and in every vacant lot in the town, and which was long regarded by most people not merely as useless but as a positive pest.

This factory is owned by one man, who invented his own process, built a large part of his own machinery, and does a large part of his own work. He has perhaps the most absolute monopoly in a monopoly-ridden republic. He retains his monopoly by keeping his process of manufacture an absolute secret. He will tell you anything about himself and his factory, except how it works.

His name is A. B. Hurst, and he is a big, gray-headed man, good-natured and having more fun with his little factory than a boy with a new sled. Fortune founded on Berry. The county berry, sometimes known as the "berry," upon which Mr. Hurst has founded his fortune, is a small shrub, usually less than a foot high and decorated with large bright red berries, having tough skins. If you pull up this plant, you are surprised to find that it has a large root, resembling a sweet potato, and growing literally all over the size of the plant. The scientific name of this plant is Zizia aurea, and it is a species of arrowweed. It grows literally all over the sandy pine barrens of the east coast of Florida. You can walk 10 feet from the road any day and find a specimen of Mr. Hurst's berry. It grows in a great abundance, and he gets it for next to nothing. He pays farmers a small sum for the right to cut away the berries on their lands. Starch is made from a similar plant which is cultivated in the West Indies, but it is the only man who has made a success of utilizing the wild one.

Is Berry of Turkey. This county is well, or rather badly known to the natives, because it is the natural enemy of the turkey. When the white man first moved into these parts he was surprised to learn that there were no wild turkeys on the east coast, although the interior and the west coast counted many of them. A small wood-ward, who discovered when they introduced domestic turkeys. A domestic turkey would grow along here, but he came to his first county plant, which would necessarily be soon after his arrival. He would then pause a moment with a gladdened eye. He would seem to feel sure that they were food of a desirable sort. In just a few minutes he would have killed a crop with the big, luscious-looking fruit, and for a time thereafter he would enjoy a sense of personal well-being. But this would not last long, for he would soon begin to weaken.

Just Like Marbles. Not that the counties poisoned him. According to the most reliable accounts, the whole trouble with them is that their outer integument is capable of resisting all the mechanical and chemical agents which a turkey's gizzard can bring to bear upon them. They do not afford the bird any more nourishment than do so many marbles. They occupy the turkey's space, but do not deliver the fuel value. After a few days the turkey who has eaten counties dies of starvation and disappointment.

Mr. Hurst is therefore not only making use of a hitherto unused plant, but is avenging the turkey and making the east coast of Florida safe for him.

Last Money in Oranges. Mr. Hurst used to be an orange grower, but he lost heavily in the great freeze of 1894, and resolved there and then, as he put it, "to go into some business that didn't depend on the weather."

He got interested in making starch by working for a company which was trying to manufacture it out of was bought by the Marine Corps for $11,000 by public subscription and is to be placed temporarily in the Corcoran Art Galleries at Washington, D. C.

PERSONNETTE

WAITER PATER

"All art constantly aspires to the condition of music," said Walter Pater. His own art of writing prose succeeded almost unannounced in this aspiration. One of his stories, "The Child in the House," has been called the purest piece of word-melody in language. His style of writing is noted for its exquisite perfection. His writings might profitably be used as textbooks by aspiring young authors, and his essays would be a model to be followed by those who seek to perfect their artistic ideals for immediate monetary results.

There is a simple thought which ought to be taken as the basis of any honest writer's creed: "All beauty is only the fineness of truth, the finer accommodation of speech to that vision within."

Would that the writers of those stories about clean-limbed young businessmen, who are largely made up of lists of prices and selling schemes, might take this precept to heart.

But Walter Pater's theories of life should have a much wider appeal to this generation than his theories of art. We should probably call him "thick" and effeminate if he were living among us now. He was the essence of that supersensitive, nineteenth century Oxford refinement.

He disliked athletic games, he did not smoke. He even refused afternoon tea! He was tall and slightly stooped, with a large ivory-colored face and gray-green eyes. He wore a carefully trimmed mustache and carefully fatigued air, and he carried the "neatest of gold-topped umbrellas."

He was so fastidious, that he once said, "I admire Poe's originality but I cannot read him in the original. He is rough. I read him in Baudelaire's translation."

But in spite of what may seem affection to you, Walter Pater is to be envied for his firmness in refusing to let life engulf him. Anyone who has felt with exasperation that he is simply losing his own personality in the confusion of the hurly-burly of civilized life will appreciate the greatness of a man who could reduce to the lowest point all the practical details of living, and walk in a serene and leisurely manner through the world. As nearly as is humanly possible, he seemed to follow out his ambition of "living exclusively in the ideal of poetic truths, the elements of distinction in every day life, that the mere drift or debris of the days comes to be as though it were not."

The demand of the intellect is to feel itself alive.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY E. MOUTON

"How long has the caller been waiting?" asked the small great man of his secretary.

"One hour."

"Did you tell him I was in conference?"

"I told him you were in conference with a cabinet member."

"Quite right," he said, "I have told him about lunch."

"I have told him that you would give him only three minutes, as you had a luncheon engagement with a bank president."

"Does he seem to be tired of waiting?"

"He is drooping in his chair."

"Has the office boy been rusing in and out as per orders?"

"Yes. He has brought the same phony telegram in nine times."

"Has the telephone been ringing?"

"The switchboard has called me on the phone 29 times as per instructions."

"Do you think the caller is properly impressed?"

"I have done my best."

"The great small man removed his feet from his desk, doused his cigar, swept a solitary desk into his desk drawer, furrowed his brow, put on a pair of double-breasted, horn-rimmed glasses, picked up the end of his telephone tube to toy with during the interview and said:

"Then, I will see him. But, warn him—only three minutes."

The caller was the first one in five weeks. He came to collect a bill.

There are only two times that a baby will cry. When there is something the matter with him and when there is nothing the matter with him.

Do women have a sense of humor?" asked a contributor.

"I don't doubt it, but, but we do know that they have an excellent sense of humor."

ASK US

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederic J. Haskin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information may write to the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by the bureau.

Was John Maynard Keynes, author of "Economic Consequences of the Peace," ever connected with the British embassy at Washington?

A. Mr. Keynes, who is a member of the British Civil Service, and editor of the Economic Journal, accompanied Lord Reading to Washington as financial advisor in 1917. Mr. Keynes was the chief representative of the British treasury at the peace conference.

Q. Can you suggest some fat-producing foods? C. H. M.

A. The Iowa State College of Agriculture is studying the following foods to increase weight: Butter, cream, olive oil, bacon, baked potatoes, milk, well-cooked cereals, cream soups, raisins, cream toast, prunes, figs, dates, custards, and eggs.

Q. What is President Wilson's full name? N. O. A.

A. He was christened Thomas Woodrow Wilson, but he rarely uses his first or christian name.

Q. What is the salary of Judge Anderson, the federal judge who presided at the impeachment of the president?

A. Judge Anderson, of the federal district court of Indiana, receives a salary of $5,000. He was appointed to office by President Wilson.

Q. What did President Wilson say about hyphenated Americans during that phrase? C. I. S.

A. Among other things, he said, in a speech delivered at the unveiling of a statue to Commodore John Barry, that "some Americans need hyphens in their names, because only part of them has come over; but when the whole man has come over, heart and thought and all, the hyphen drops of its own weight out of the name."

Q. "Terrible Terry" McGovern ever knock out Joe Gans? T. H.

A. McGovern knocked out the colored lightweight champion of the world in the second of their bouts held at the Chicago Athletic club, Dec. 13, 1906. McGovern's victory over Gans was one of his greatest surprises in pugilistic annals.

Q. What is an Alaskan fur-skin worth? P. D.

A. At a public auction held a month ago in St. Louis, 3,100 dressed, dyed and machined fur-skins from Alaska were sold. The skins commanded the highest price ever paid. One set brought $177 each, and a number of others were sold for $170. The average price paid was $141. This is an advance of about 55 percent over the sale of September, 1919. The aggregate amount of this sale of furs was $1,252,500.

Is the United States importing sugar from Europe? T. C. B.

A. Nearly 6,000,000 pounds of sugar were imported from London during the first half of January of the present year. These consignments consisted of sugar from Java and Mauritius and the price paid was about 15 cents a pound.

MARK FISHER

Four artists of American birth now have the right to place the distinguished initials, "R. A.," which signify Royal Academician, after their names. The latest is Mark Fisher, who, already an associate of the Royal Academy, was elected a full member at a general assembly of academicians and associates held in London.

The other American royal academicians are John S. Sargent, Edwin A. Abbey, and J. J. Shannon. Two of them at least are among the most eminent members of the historic body to which George J. Elmer granted a charter in 1765, and nothing is more surprising than the ultimate election of one of them to its presidency, the post that another American, Benjamin West, one of the original members of the academy, occupied for 23 years.

Mark Fisher, the new R. A., is one of the many American artists who, denied recognition in their own country at the outset of their careers, have won it abroad in abundant measure. He was born in Boston, Mass., of English and Irish parents, and educated in the public schools of that city. When quite a child he showed a marked talent for drawing. His earliest instruction was at the Lowell institute. His first efforts were portraits and figures, but his love of outdoor subjects later induced him to take up landscape and animal life.

News Notes From Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

While many actors and producers are going abroad to make films, some of the foreign artists are coming to this country for the same purpose. Blasco Ibañez, the Spanish author, is to supervise the dramatization of his works, and Maeterlinck, the famous Belgian poet and playwright, is to make one picture a year for Goldwyn. Max Linder, the French comedian, is also back in this country to make pictures.

One of the newest arrivals in this country is of the fair sex. Miss Hope Hampton, well known in the theatrical world of England, arrived in New York a short time ago and is now busy on her first picture which she is making for Metro. It is called "A Modern Salome" and is based on Oscar Wilde's play "Salome." This photograph of Miss Hampton was taken on board ship on the way over here. With her is "Bob," who was a girl presented to her by Sir William Jevrey, a great British theater manager. Miss Hampton has been popularly known as the "best gowned girl in England."

MARY PICKFORD DIVORCED

News has come from Nevada, that state which is famous for its divorce crop each year, that Mary Pickford has been granted a divorce from Owen Moore. It has long been known by intimates of the two that they were unhappy. Mr. Moore has lived at the Los Angeles Athletic club for over two years. Miss Pickford gave desertion as her grounds for divorce. The decree was obtained at Minden, a small town near Carson City, Nevada. Mr. Moore was not in court, although he was in the town. A lawyer represented him at the proceedings.

IS THIS A RECORD

Tully Marshall, who is now at the Goldwyn studio playing in support of Mabel Normand in "The Slim Pickens," offers to make his record for playing varied parts against that of any living actor. Probably he could be persuaded to enlarge the limit and include dead actors as well. He has played blackface and he has played Hamlet. Also (or so he says) he has played every conceivable kind of a part between those extremes. Last year he scored with a claimant for equal honors with him on that score. He has to add that he has not played masculine characters only. He has played a number of old women—negro, Irish, and New England. The only part he can think of which he has not played, he features by the Christie company.

Japanese Girls Adopt American Dress
Miss Kawai Sends for Expert Designer

Japan needs costume designers. The present mode of dress for women is about to be dispensed with in the interests of efficiency and to relieve women from "the tyranny of dress," according to dispatches received by the National Young Women's Christian Association.

Miss Michi Kawai, general secretary for the Japanese National Y. W. C. A., has sent an urgent appeal to the secretarial department of the American Y. W. C. A. with headquarters in New York, asking that an expert designer and drafter of patterns for women's clothing be sent to Japan.

Miss Kawai states that society is making new demands on women in Japan these days and that they must be free to respond. They have gone into industry in such large numbers during the past five years that the majority of industrial workers are now women. They have gone into clerical and stenographic work and into all of the professions and trades with the result that women can no longer spend the endless hours cleaning and re-mending the respective wardrobes of members of the family as is necessary with the present mode of dress. The wave of industrialism has proved the value of time, formerly held as of no money value, and caused a depreciation of the value of fabrics, which are now made by machine.

The woman of ordinary circumstances in Japan, such as school teachers and the wives of small merchants, must have fifty or so dresses made of linen, cotton, silk or mixed materials varying with the use which is to be made of them. She must have dresses for spring, summer, fall, late autumn and winter, these latter having a heavy cotton wadding lining. She must have dresses in these varying weights for the home, the bath, the street, for ordinary social occasions, for dress-up wear (these lining) and a dress for grand occasions. In addition she must have at least two kinds of coats, one cut with a square neck and one with the ordinary kimono neck.

Miss Hope Hampton.

says, is little Eva. And he doesn't quite see how he ever escaped that.

DAINTY FROCK FOR INFORMAL AFFAIRS

By ELOISE.

Now is the time one always wants some sort of between-seasons frock. It is something which is light but not too light for late winter and early spring wear and yet not too dark for late spring and early summer wear. Chiffons and satins are most popular for this between-seasons time but tricotettes and georgettes are also much favored. Frocks which combine two materials are always in the lead.

This one pictured is a charming style for any of the informal dances or teas which the spring may bring. It is designed in blue satin with an overdraping of gray georgette. Many crystal beads which simulate dozens of dainty little tassels form the main trimming. A bit of real fillet at the neck gives a delicate outline to the square cut effect and, of course, this frock has the new short sleeves. Then there is the becoming wide girle of the satin and the dress is complete. A word of warning, however, the girl or woman who would wear gray and look well in it must see that her colorings are as complexion and hair permit.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief. Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister. Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throats, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable. 30¢ and 60¢ jars; hospital size $2.50.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young divorced widow with a boy, girl three years old. My husband doesn't care anything for the child. He stays in the same town I do and doesn't even call up to see me. He never sends for anything, not even for Christmas or her birthday. I have to support myself, which I made an agreement with him to do. Would you let him know he has been doing or sue him for child desertion? Sometimes I think I'd not bother him or even let him know I have since he does not care for it. He is a fellow who is a great lover of home and mother. Mother always came first. Some day, don't you think, he will come to his senses and see his mistake? I do not love him any more; he has done so many mean things to the child and me, but I like him too much for the kind of a man he is.

TWENTY-ONE SUMMERS.
Unless you agree in court to support the child, you will have to support the father, you can sue him for child desertion. If you find it difficult to take care of the child properly the father should help you regardless of agreement.

When the father is older he may feel that he has made a mistake to let you and the child go. He will have no reason to believe he will be sorry for what he has done. The fact that he has not remembered the child at Christmas time or her birthday shows how little he cares.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two school friends, junior in high school. You please tell us how we should be proper to use on our faces, as we have to walk quite a distance to school and the wind and cold change our faces. This makes them very rough and powder will not go on smoothly.

TWO PAIS.
Have your druggist recommend a good cold cream that will be a skin food. Wash your face thoroughly.

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

Well, I think I am done for all time with petty jealousies. I wish I could get out on a housetop somewhere and preach a sermon to young wives, the gist of which would be: "Don't love your husband, but love your ears and seal your heart against every word which is least suspicious into your mind against your husband. Fight to the last ditch for your belief in him. Think of him as your other self. Never be less loyal to him than to the rest of the world. Assume that he is your trust. For he generally does. And if worst comes to worst you will be the happier for closing your eyes to all his wrongs."

I shall set the thing down here as a punishment and a lesson. Jim came home looking preoccupied, worried. He hardly looked at me. He didn't talk. It annoyed me. A woman in my condition of mind and body becomes a frightful egotist. She wants to be noticed, to be petted and loved and emotionalized over. Not so much for herself as in token of the love other souls she is guarding.

"Matter, Minnie?" I hazarded. Agatha Pardoe's horrid insinuation flattered my mind.

"Nothing at all, why?"
"Oh, you seem absent-minded and—"

"I've had a hard day, Man talked to me three hours and running about a scheme. Lots of money in it, maybe."
You may need lots if what Miss Green says is true.
Jim looked up from his paper with carefully restrained annoyance.
"What do you mean, Ann?" Hevo-

Health Talks

SAVE THE WRAPPER—X

Fishwives and Boils

A boil is a little one-cylinder abscess. It is an infection of a hair-follicle or root hole with staphylococci. Staphylococci are germs commonly found on the surface of the cleanest skins and capable of producing inflammation and formation of pus when they invade the tissues of the body. The bacteria find their way through the true skin into the loose subcutaneous tissue, and the looseness thereof infamously accounts for the tendency towards the accumulation of pus. Inflammatory exudate about the bottom of the root hole, which is to say a boil.

The first boil is a matter of luck. Some trifling abrasion, even a slight prolonged friction by a rugged collar or a rough or tight neckband, serves to open a portal of entrance for the staphylococci. But the second, third and fourth boils are matters of ignorance and mismanagement, as a general rule. The victim's finger touches the sore, the hair is pulled and hence convey a few million staphylococci to fresh ground for their work. Or the dirty dressing wounds the delicate skin. The material for the transplantation. Or portions of clothing contaminated with the virus are used. The result is a vicious staphylococcal from which the victim hereafter is a visible discharge of pus) rub the neighboring skin and inoculate it repeatedly. Or the ideal culture medium pus serves the purpose of maintaining more or less constant crop.

Few salves or ointments which irritate the skin, covering the sore, will not convey virulent infection from one point of the skin to another point nearby.

It is scarcely necessary to mention the infection-favoring possibilities of the various filthy substances which insidiously advise victims of boils to apply.

In short, the popular superstitions concerning the nature and treatment of a boil turn a tremendous amount of money into the pockets of physicians in the long run. It is a pity to hear that this has anything to do with the fact that now and then even a physician acquiesces in the pollution of a boil.

A poultice, when properly made and applied, furnishes heat and moisture. A well made flaxseed meal poultice should be used at the point. It retains the heat longer than any emulsion liniment, though it cannot stuff sometimes, smelly, more mysterious. But heat and moisture are much more clearly applied in the form of large hot moist compresses, cheesecloth or thick folds applied to the surface. Heat, with face soap and hot water and rub in the poultice. This should be done every night before retiring. Do not use powder, because it will roughen the skin.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it proper for a girl nineteen years old who is very small for her age to wear her dresses well below her knees and let her hair hang down her back in curls, caught on the back of the head with a ribbon? She desires to dress in this way until she is twenty-one. Do you think it would be proper?

LITTLE GIRL.
The girl should dress according to her age and not her size. She is too old to wear curls down her back.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl eighteen years old and am engaged to a fellow who is seventeen. We have been going together two years. He tells me he loves me, but sometimes he accompanies other girls where I am not invited, but when I go with other boys it makes him very jealous and he tells me I do not love him. I love him very much, but should he go with other girls if he does not want me to do the same?

ABUSED SWEETHEART.
Since the young man is engaged to you he should not go to parties with other girls. Your engagement seems to be a mistake. Both of you ought to be enjoying a variety of young people.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen. I keep company with a young man of twenty-three. My father will not let him come to the house, but he can influence father in his favor?

If your father will not see the young man to talk the matter over with him, write a letter to him. Your father probably considers you too young to "keep company." You are about a year too young.

FOR THE CAKE BOX

Cooky Recipe.—Two scant cups brown sugar, one-half cup butter and lard mixed, one tablespoon vanilla. Cream these together, then add two eggs (without beating), one teaspoon salt (level), three cups flour, one level teaspoon soda, one level teaspoon cream tartar.
Sift the flour, soda and cream tartar three times. Mix and form into loaf the desired shape and put down in pan until next day, then slice down in medium thin slices and bake as other cookies.
These are excellent. You can sprinkle sugar on top before baking if desired.

Ginger Cookies.—One cup bacon drippings, one cup molasses (or half syrup and half molasses), one half cup sugar, one cup flour, one cup hot coffee, beat and add one cup vinegar, one tablespoon ginger.
Mix all together, let stand over night in cold place. In the morning roll out thin and bake.

Spice Cake.—Through spice cake recipes are plentiful, this one is especially economical and tasty:
One-half cup of oil, one cup of sugar, one well beaten egg yolk, two and one-quarter cups flour sifted twice with one-half teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg, one-half cup raisins, one very stiff egg white.

Put one tablespoon molasses in cup, fill to with sour milk, add rounded teaspoon baking soda.

Cream butter or fat with egg beater, add sugar gradually, creaming thoroughly. Add other ingredients in order. Bake loaf 45 minutes.

TRY THESE

Spice Cake. One cup sugar and one large tablespoon butter creamed together; add yolks of two eggs and beat well. One cup sour cream or milk, one cup sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves, two cups sifted flour, one teaspoon baking powder.

Spiced Raisin Cake.—One cup sugar, three tablespoons water, one tablespoon vinegar; boil together and when it boils until it threads and two cups of raisins are added, add to the lemon and boil a few minutes (stirring constantly), then remove from stove.

Lemon Snow Pudding.—Take one lemon, squeeze juice and grate a little of the rind and add one and one-half cups water and three-quarter cup sugar. Put into a granite kettle and let come to a boil. Then add two cups of cornstarch and add to the lemon and boil a few minutes (stirring constantly), then remove from stove.

Have the whites of two eggs (three is better) beaten stiff and stir gently into the lemon while still hot, and stand in cool place.

Use the yolks for a thin custard. Put one pint of milk in a double boiler, stir in the yolks, a pinch of salt and one-half cup of sugar, let come to a boil and take off stove, then add one teaspoon vanilla.

When cool, serve in glass pudding dishes and top with cream, fruit and a little dab of jelly on top.

This makes a very pretty and good dessert and will serve six people.

COMPARES BADGER LAKES

WITH THE WOMEN OF EUROPE.
Microscopic life in the lakes of Europe will be compared with that of Wisconsin lakes in a study to be made by Dr. Gilbert M. Smith of the department of botany who left recently for Europe on a semester's leave of absence.

Under the direction of the Wisconsin state geological and natural history survey, Dr. Smith has been preparing a two-volume study of the microscopic life of Wisconsin lakes. The first volume will be published soon.

Jaws have four third molars, called wisdom teeth, because they are cut when we are supposed to be past wisdom. But a tooth survey by Talbot showed that 37 percent of adults over 25 years of age in this country have from one to four wisdom teeth unerupted—due either to insufficient use of the teeth for mastication, or to undernourished foods, or, as Talbot suggested, to the evolution of the human jaw which is still in the process of being changed.

Behind the face-line (Camper's angle), if you have cut all four third molars you probably have no room for trouble. Trouble is often produced by impaction of a wisdom tooth which has never erupted.

Has Raised a New Standard for Baking Powder

Because it is made in the most careful and scientific manner from absolutely pure materials that remain pure in the baking and insure wholesome, healthful foods.

Because it possesses the greatest leavening power.

Because it is not affected by time or weather—it never loses its strength and never fails.

Because it is most economical—you save when you buy it and you save when you use it.

These are the reasons why Calumet is the standard baking powder—the choice of millions—more being sold than of any other brand.

Try it—always buy it. Your grocer can supply you.

Calumet contains only such ingredients as have been approved officially by the U. S. Food Authority.

Cartridge Silk, New Novelty In Dress Goods for Summer

By ELOISE.

To demonstrate the beauty of garments made of the new cartridge silk cloth, which was used during the war to contain the propellant charges for cannon, a fashion show will be staged in New York soon, in which living models will wear especially designed gowns of this silk. Some of the most famous designers of this country have made special modes especially for the new fabric.

In its undyed state the cartridge silk has the appearance of a wonderful rattan linen, but it has none of the "crushing" faults of linen. It washes well, and, in fact, increases in beauty with every washing. It gains increased "finish." Moreover, it is unexcelled in durability. When you think of it in terms of durability, recall the fact that it was made to contain heavy explosive charges. It was made to withstand pressure, to be soft and pliable, to fold out innumerable wrinkles or stretch into odd shapes.

Altogether, there are more than thirty shades of this silk. At first no one knew what use to put this new textile, but after months of laboratory work and experimentation, a very good fabric has been developed.

Not only have the most expert dyers, those craftsmen whose subtle sense of color ranks them as among masters of their persuasion, dyed the silk in many shades, but a number of the most famous couturiers of the United States and Paris have been engaged in the creation of special designs which will be shown at the fashion show. These, it is promised, will set new standards in current fashions. Evening gowns, sport suits, blouses, street dresses, men's summer suits, parasols, hats and shoes, whose uppers will match either the silk or gowns, are being made from this wonderful silk. Motifs for draperies show beautiful effects. So far the silk has been made up in a color line of about 30 colors, although a number of fancy effects have been evolved, and quite a few will be shown.

A large number of sport effects will be on the market against a plain background, are produced shortly. A beautiful mite green was suitable for opera cloaks for the early spring. Another was a mottled print in which the pastels shades predominated and which had an oriental glamor to it. This piece is being made up into a handsome blouse. Stripes in which contrasting shades are used will be shown.

As well as a small pencil stripe against a plain background, are among the lines that are being made up into sport suits of all kinds.

While there is variety in the quality of the silk, ranging from light to very heavy weight, yet one quality seems to make the dye as well as another, and the colors are all exquisite, according to the manufacturers. They are said to be fast.

CHAPTER VI.
Monsieur Drops His Mask.

The wild-eyed Swedish maid let me in. The scene room door opened and Mr. de Ravenol stepped out and came to greet me.

Monsieur advanced, with outstretched hand but no smile. We spoke in whispers.

"Where is she?"

He pointed up, to indicate her bedroom, and whispered, "I must speak with you before you see her," and moved out of the vestibule, motioning me to follow.

I took two steps and stopped.

"Zik way, if you please," said he, pointing to the scene room door.

I took two more steps and stopped again, in front of the reception room door. I had the strongest feeling one ever has, I didn't want to go into the scene room with him—that I simply could not go—that my feet refused to budge another inch in the direction of the door.

I hesitated—for there was such a ratty look in his face that he repelled me—he added, "Paydon, madame, but I have for ze present ze responsibility. It was merely zat I wish to acquaint madame with ze nature of ze disaster zat have overtaken her friend zat I usic for some words in private." He made a gesture toward the basement stairs and dropped his voice. He finished, "One never knows but ze most trusted servants in one's employ are spies."

"Thinking of the wild-eyed one, I smiled. He shrugged. "Madame, we are wasting precious time zat may mean everything to Madame Delario. Permit me to beg of you—"

"And I followed him at once to the scene room, the door of which he pushed open, standing aside and saying in French, "Permettez moi, Apres vous, madame," to let me enter ahead of him.

To my surprise the room was brilliantly lighted with all the electric bulbs in full bloom; and I turned just in time to see him lock the door on us and pocket the key!

He did so swiftly, so silently, that under ordinary circumstances I shouldn't have known I was locked in with him. I believe now that the brilliant light into which he'd thrust me out of the dim hall was especially designed to confuse me should I turn on him sooner than he had calculated it would. But the very instant I crossed the threshold I knew he was going to lock the door, and I wheeled—just one second too soon.

I turned four more steps into the room I should have been none the wiser about the key—till the time came.

But I had caught him in the act. I let him know it.

"What, monsieur," I demanded haughtily, "is the object of that precaution?"

"It was necessary," he returned, coming toward me and searching my face with ready eyes.

"Neither of us spoke for several seconds. Where was Mrs. Delario, and had anything really happened to her? Was this merely a precaution to prevent her escape, or did he mean me some harm? Well, if he did, I had a couple of good stout happenings within call.

"Monsieur," he said kindly, "I don't think that door immediately."

"In one moment—when I have said what I have to say," he replied, in a smooth attempt to keep up appearances. I have no feeling of importance to ask me."

"And I have nothing to say to monsieur—behind locked doors."

"Interupted angrily, "If monsieur is a gentleman he will instantly unlock that door."

"I took a step nearer, as if to show him no intention of taking orders from me. He'd open the door when he got ready to."

I thought he meant to lay hands on me, and I stepped back, but he confronted him, my eyes blazing and my teeth set so hard I heard them grit.

My act brought him to his senses, and he apologized—saying he was sorry he had "alarmed" me—that on his word of honor he meant me no harm whatever, a whole lot of palaver that, designed to get the hatpin where it came from and me into an amiable frame of mind and once more at his mercy.

I listened to the palaver coolly—with the hatpin in my hand I felt perfectly safe, and I didn't put it back. I hardly thought he was armed, and when he said, "I am sorry, I did, and the hatpin in my firm clutch gave me a sense of immense advantage in dialogue."

I actually, in a minute or two, had seen the end of it. He had no thrills when he said, "I implore madame to consider ze position she puts me in as a gentleman—by standing ze way to ze door, she has put me in a position of great disadvantage."

His face darkened. The black showed under the roses.

"Is madame intending to converse with me holding a weapon in her hand?"

"Is monsieur intending to converse with me behind locked doors?"

"Very well, then, get it over! What is it?" I felt very sure by this time it had nothing, directly, to do with Mrs. Delario.

"It is zis—my daughter, Claire, was robbed of some very valuable jewels on ze steamer coming over. Ze are two persons who could possibly have committed ze act—Mrs. Delario and yourself."

I was dazed—so dazed that I stammered.

"You say Claire was robbed coming over on the steamer—and you think I did it?"

"Precisely."

My wits came back with that flat accusation.

"Then why didn't she say something about it at the time?" I demanded.

"Probably because she was not aware of it at ze time—one seldom is, if I may be permitted to point it out to madame."

I was so completely innocent of even knowing that the girl had jewelry with her except such little trinkets as a child values and that nobody but a street thief would have bothered her head over—that I saw the man's accusation as blackmail.

That word suddenly popped into my head and gave me the basis of a return attack.

"You mean to tell me that Claire had valuable jewels on the steamer yet never mentioned the fact to either Mrs. Delario or myself?"

"Naturally," she says, "nobody would steal from her unless she was rich. She is under no obligation to speak of such a matter to you."

"In other words, she was smuggling valuable jewels into the country—trying to get them through the customs house without our knowing she could feel her to declare them?"

"Smuggling? She is taking them to her mother—zey have, once been purchased in America."

"I don't believe she had any jewels," I asserted bravely. "Merely to say she had—and she hasn't got them now—doesn't prove anything. You must have seen enough to see that for yourself."

His face had darkened again. "You doubt my word? I have ze proof, madame, ze absolute proof—that she had ze jewels w'er when she went on board ze steamer; and while on board; and up to a certain date. I can furnish proof zat would be accepted in any court—if madame renders it necessary."

WHEN A MAN'S MARRIED

BILLY WHISKERS

FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

After the elephant broke down the bridge over the stream, the only way for the circus to get across was for the wagons to drive down the steep embankment, through the water and up the other side. This they proceeded to do, but Billy Whiskers and Betty jumped the space. They scampered on ahead after the horseback riders who had gone before.

As they ran they could hear the lion's roar and the hyena's laugh when their cages were driven into the water, and the water rose on them, while the elephants kept up such a trumpeting that it awoke all the country folks who were near enough to hear it, and they thought the day of judgment had come and it was Gabriel's trumpet they heard.

A poor, ignorant Swedish family that lived on the bank of the stream, and the brave husband came and looked out of the window to see what all the commotion was about.

As he looked on he saw his wife, by coaxing and threatening succeeded in getting his wife out of bed. As she had never been to a circus in her life he was very much interested in the picture of wild animals, she was nearly frightened to death at what she saw passing in the moon light, and ran back to bed and put her head under the just as he got there the lions gave a mighty roar and all the animals followed suit, for the lions' cage was passing through the water and they did not like the cold water crawling up their legs and of course they thought they were going to be drowned; while the Swedish workman thought he was going to be chewed up alive, and flew back to bed with teeth chattering and held on to his wife for protection, and a lion nearly came after them.

He would probably have thrown his wife at the lion's head for him to eat, while he made good his escape. At this time Billy and Betty were trodding along side by side gossiping about people in the circus, and all the time it became lighter and lighter as it was getting nearer sunrise.

About 5 o'clock they saw away in the blue distance, a tall church steeple and they knew they must be nearing the town where the circus was to be held.

As they came nearer they could hear the sound of the church bell ringing on the steeple, calling the people to early morning services, and soon they could see the people going to church, and the mothers take their children by the hand and lead them into the church as they did not want them to see anything so wicked as a circus procession on Sunday morning.

Billy, noticing this, said "Let us give the children a treat. When the people are all in church we will go in and see what it looks like inside."

Betty agreed.

(You'll hear tomorrow what happened at the church.)

Read This and Tell Dad
How Movie Camera Works
By Grant M. Hyde.

"Every time I watch a moving picture, Daddy, I wonder what makes the picture move. But everyone whom I ask laughs at me and says 'if you were a little older, you would know, for when the moving picture was invented a few years ago it was so wonderful that almost everyone knew how it worked. And in the early pictures it was not so hard to see how it was done because the pictures flickered so that they gave the secret away."

"A motion picture is a series of thousands of photographs, taken an instant apart, each just a little different from the next, thrown before you one after another, so fast and so perfectly that they melt into one picture and make you think you are watching one picture in which persons are moving. Each picture in the camera is about as large as a special delivery postage stamp, and hundreds of them are taken, one above the other, on a long strip of celluloid. This strip is called a 'film'—that is why movie plays are called 'film plays.' The film that can be rolled on the big camera spool is called a 'reel,' and so we speak of two-reel and five-reel plays because of the amount of film used in showing them."

"The moving picture camera is a complicated affair, with two film reels, a crank, an automatic shutter. As the camera man takes the picture, he turns the crank to wind the film from one reel to the other; and as he cranks, the film passes in front of a shutter that keeps opening and closing to take a different picture on each inch of film, so many per second. Then the film is taken to a laboratory to be developed. Another film, or 'positive,' must be printed from it, just as we print color pictures."

"In the theater, the film is cranked again. The projector, or lantern, and the two reels, like the camera, and the electric motor, brings the pictures one after another between a powerful light and a lens. They are thus magnified to a large size and thrown on a screen in rapid succession. In early moving pictures the change from one picture to the next was made by a noticeable flicker on the screen, but improved cameras and projectors have practically done away with this flicker and made the longer chain the pictures as they are thrown before you."

2 BADGER CITIES HOLD HOUSE-FITTING CLASSES
Beloit and Kenosha now have group classes in home decoration and furnishing each consisting of between 30 and 40 women and merchants who meet once a week, for six weeks. They were organized this week by the university of Wisconsin Extension division. The class in Kenosha was requested by several brides.

These classes are similar to those held in Elkhart, Spang, and Cross Lake, and in Stoughton, Watertown, Fort Atkinson, Milwaukee, and Madison in previous years.

The subjects of the classes include the planning of color schemes, wood finishes and wall coverings, treatment of windows and doorways, floor finishes and coverings, furniture and bric-a-brac. All the problems of the homemaker are discussed in a practical, helpful way.

HEAVY ICE FLOES PUT FISHERMEN AT A LOSS
Shelbygan.—Owing to the heavy ice floes which extend far into the lake, the fishermen of Shelbygan have been operating at a great loss during the past two months. While the ice is no thicker than in former years, it has times when fishermen made trips out on the lake but were put to a loss when unable to lift their nets. It is expected that within two weeks tugs will be operating under normal expense and the local fishing industry will be conducted with its regular efficiency.

ROCK COUNTY FARMERS GET LESS FOR OUTPUT
Madison.—The farmers of Rock county received about $1,500,000 less for their output in 1919 than they did in 1918, notwithstanding a higher range of prices, according to figures compiled for the state board of agriculture by Joseph H. Becker, joint crop statistician for the state and federal departments. The actual figures for the principal 10 crops are: for 1918, $3,688,929; for 1919, $3,344,615. There were nearly 1000 acres less cultivated in 1919 than in 1918.

Dollar-Making Ideas

Dick Hazard Swings Big Deal in Laundry Business
By Belle Case Harrington.

"Say, if you and I can come to terms," said Dick Hazard, "I'll bet I can work after school and double your business out in our section of town next year."

Dick was talking to the manager of the laundry which did his family's washing. He knew what he was talking about too. He had had a laundry agency in the town in which he had formerly lived, but had been forced to give it up when his family moved here.

Dick got the job and made his word good too. But if he hadn't landed that one, he would have gotten some other kind of an agency. A laundry agency was not the only kind he knew about. He would have landed a job selling ice cream, books, aluminum wear, magazines, extract spices, or any one of a number of other articles. And he would have made quite a bit of money at it too in his spare time. So can you if you go after it.

If you're going into the agency business, be happy. People don't like to buy things from a grocer. They like to deal with a fellow who is cheerful and business-like at the same time. They also want a fellow who will do what he says he will. So don't make any promises you can't carry out. You'll lose your business that way.

An agency business is one that grows. If you are the right sort of fellow and keep at it, you will, after a time, work up to a list of regular customers. All you need to do is go around every so often, see them, and get their orders. They will get into the habit of depending on you and planning to give you their orders.

will roll up like a snowball and you will get paid back for all your months of work which gave you a low return or perhaps no return at all.

So don't give up too quick. Stick it out until you know your stuff won't sell.

Wife Doing Good Work
"I have been bad off with stomach and liver trouble and bloating for many years. No doctors or medicine helped me. On the advice of my druggist, I bought a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I don't want to miss a single dose. It has given me more benefit than all the medicine I have ever taken. I feel I am doing good to recommend it to others." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Reliable Drug Co. Advertisement.

What causes Indigestion

An excess of acid in the stomach sours the food and starts fermentation. Distressing gasses form. Your meals don't digest, but lay like lumps of lead. Then you have heartburn, flatulence, fullness, belching, head-ache and real misery in the stomach and intestines.

A few tablets of "Pape's Diapensin" bring relief almost as soon as they reach the stomach. "Pape's Diapensin" costs little at drug stores. Advertisement.

DANIELS IS FEARFUL OF BRITISH NAVY

question of building navies for the British nations as well as already been seized upon by persons none too friendly to British cooperation as a vehicle for further argument in that direction.

Congress Is Sensitive.

The sensitive attitude of congress and the navy department may be discovered in the stenographic record just available of Secretary Daniels' testimony before the house naval affairs committee.

Representative Browning: Did you see an article in this morning's paper in regard to the English navy?

Secretary Daniels: Yes.

Mr. Browning: Saying that they did not expect it to be any larger than the American navy?

Secretary Daniels: I saw that.

Hedges on Officiality.

Mr. Browning: Have you any comment to make on that statement?

Secretary Daniels: Of course I would not like to make any comment on it as being official. Unless I had an official statement from Great Britain, I would not like to assume.

Mr. Browning: I do not presume that it is official.

The chairman: It purported to quote the ambassador who is coming to this country, and, Mr. Secretary, if that statement of the ambassador should turn out to be the policy of Great Britain, what have you to say about it?

Questions Who Builds Ships.

Secretary Daniels: I would like to ask whether that is the policy of Great Britain as represented in parliament in London or whether, instead of building these great ships by Great Britain, through the imperial government the increase is to be made in line with the policy for which Lord Jellicoe has been going around the world, where he has proposed to Canada, New Zealand and the English colonies, that they should themselves build a navy, which they have not had heretofore. In that case it might be that the imperial government in London would not add ships but the colonies would.

Mr. Hedges: As I understand it, Mr. Secretary, you stated that unless the league of nations is entered into by the United States, you feel constrained, as I understand, to recommend that the United States build the largest navy in the world?

Secretary Daniels: Absolutely.

British Have Largest Navy.

Mr. Hedges: What I would like to know is how you can reconcile that to this condition. Previous to the war Great Britain had the largest navy in the world as she has now.

There was no league of nations then even in contemplation, yet we were not building then to outstrip Great Britain. Now why should we at the present time even without the league of nations, embark upon a program to outbuild Great Britain. Why should we change the policy we have followed for the past four or five years?

Secretary Daniels: I do not think we ought to start on a program or be influenced by a program to outbuild Great Britain or in competition with any one particular nation, but I think if we are to go back to the old conditions particularly with the great unrest throughout the world that our country ought to have a navy not surpassed by any navy in the world.

War Taught Lesson.

Mr. Hedges: Then you think there is some single national situation that arranges going ahead and building the largest navy in the world which did not exist five years ago when there was no league?

Secretary Daniels: The war taught us some lessons, and I have learned something, I hope. I think this country all of us—and I say all of us because I think it applies truly to Americans—thought we were not in danger of a war, a world war. Many people thought that the great commercial interests of the world were so powerful that they would prevent a world war, and I think looking back upon it, that we did not apprehend the dangers that existed and that if our foresight had been as good as our hindsight in 1913 and 1914, I would have recommended and urged this committee to build many more ships than we built. I am certain that when the war came I would have given anything on earth and mortgaged my soul's future for as many destroyers as we have now.

What If U. S. Joins League?

Mr. Venable: In the event that the United States does go into the league of nations and the treaty is ratified, do you think we should build the program to round out the fleet as a fighting machine?

Secretary Daniels: Yes, because with a league of nations as it would be now, the passing of a year has occasioned the loss of much of the moral force that a league of nations should have. It will be years before the countries of the world will accept its decisions, and I think that this country ought to be in a position to furnish quite as strong a force for the world mobile police as any other nation.

I do not like the idea of our country rich as it is and powerful as it is, saying "We will let some other nation furnish this mobile force." I want us to sit at the table and say, "Well, we will do this equally with anybody."

Wilson for Armament.

The foregoing is not only a remarkable passage in naval history but it shows that President Wilson is not altogether sure that naval disarmament is going to be accomplished soon. The administration policy toward disarmament has not changed but the conviction has grown that in order to persuade Great Britain to reduce her navy, the United States must be ready to build an equivalent force.

Undisputed.—Alexander Simonsen, a lawyer and ardent champion of the Christian movement, has accepted the task of forming a new ministry.

ANTE-SEASON BALL STARTS TOMORROW

Yanks and Dodgers Open Inter-league Series at Training Camps.

(By Associated Press.)
New York, March 12.—The opening contest in the annual ante-season inter-league games between the baseball teams of the major circuits will be played in Jacksonville, Fla., tomorrow, weather permitting, when the New York Americans and the Brooklyn Nationals meet in the first match game of a long series. Other combinations will quickly follow suit and by the middle of the month more than half of the teams composing the National and American leagues will be engaged in these pre-season games.

Hundred Contests.

Fully twice as many contests of this type have been scheduled than was the case a year ago, and it is probable that close to a hundred such exhibition games will be played before the National and American initial pennant battles on April 14.

The site of conflict stretches throughout the south and southwest, while the homeward trip at the close of the close of southern training will be sprinkled with similar games.

In these games the modern baseball manager and club secretary have found a way in which to partially cut down the heavy cost incident to training trips, in which parties of more than forty husky athletes have to be transported and quartered at the expense of the club.

While the average gate receipts do not compare with those of major league pennant games, the income from the contests is not so small as to be ignored and in addition the games give baseball fans of the far south their only opportunity to see famous diamond stars in action.

Washington.—Recommendations that the United States accept a mandate over Armenia are understood to be contained in the report of the American commission under Major General Harbord.

PROHIBITION DRIVES FOREIGN-BORN HOME

(By Associated Press.)
New York, March 12.—Prohibition is causing so many foreign-born to leave the United States that emigration is exceeding immigration, according to Congressman Isaac Stigel, a member of the house immigration committee.

Ellis Island records today showed that immigration since Jan. 1 totaled $3,000, while 61,000 persons left the country. Most of the latter have gone back to Poland and Czechoslovakia to stay.

While a desire to live in rejuvenated homelands is a factor in emigration, Mr. Stigel believes that prohibition is the principal reason. Inability to buy beer or wine, he says, has created considerable ill-feeling among foreign-born residents, particularly in mining districts.

PRINCIPALS IN THE FIRST DRY "REVOLUTION"

Group shows, left to right, Police Captain Claude Brown, Sheriff Robert Wilson, District Attorney Martin McDonough, Police Chief C. H. Sensiba, Deputy Sheriff John Chord and Under Sheriff Jess E. Allen. Inset shows Major A. V. Dalrymple, at left, and Leo J. Grove, his assistant.

With the withdrawal of Major A. V. Dalrymple, federal prohibition agent, and his forces from the Iron River, Mich., territory without taking any action the local forces in the dr. "revolt" are claiming a victory. The revolt started when District Attorney Martin McDonough and police and county officials took into custody dry workers who had confiscated stocks of liquor, charging them with illegally transporting liquor. Major Dalrymple, right, to the scene from Washington with a squad of men, fully armed, after announcing that he was going to "clean out Iron River and everybody in it." McDonough had difficulty in restraining the citizens of the Iron River district from meeting the force half way with shotguns. After confiscating several barrels of red wine and dumping them in the snow while a movie camera whirled, Major Dalrymple left the district with his men.

GRAIN

Chicago Review.
Chicago, March 12.—Wheat selling led by big commission houses weakened the corn market today, notwithstanding continued weakness. Temporary declines in sterling counted somewhat in favor of the bears and too did an advance in ocean rates on food stuffs from the United States to Great Britain. Besides, it was expected that corn prices were above the feeding value of the cereal. Opening quotations, with ranges, for the decline to a like advance, with May 14.18% to 14.19% and July 14.12% to 14.13% and 14.14% to 14.15% and 14.16% to 14.17% and 14.18% to 14.19% and 14.20% to
